Downtrend's in India's GDP

972. SHRI RAMDAS AGARWAL: Will the Minister of INDUSTRY be pleased to state:

(a) whether the United Nations Industrial Development Organization in its "1996 Industrial Development Global Report" predicted a downtrend in India's GDP and Manufacturing Value Added (MVA) rates till 1999, as reported in Financial Express dated 24th January, 1997;

(b) if so, the details thereof and reasons therefor; and

(c) the remedial steps Government have taken to raise more capital from internal resources instead of depending on FDI and seeking of help/partnerships of private sector in the country?

THE MINISTER OF INDUSTRY (SHRI MURASOLI MARAN): (a) and (b) Yes, Sir. The United Nations Industrial Development Organisation has forecasted deceleration in the GDP and Manufacturing Value Added growth for India from 1994 onwards. The reasons for the deceleration indicated are non-sustainability of the liberalisation policies, infrastructural deficiencies in power, transport and communication etc.

(c) The role of foreign direct investment is primarily to supplement domestic investment and to bridge the gap between domestic savings and the required rate of investment so as to attain the targeted growth rate.
